

Attendance

Persistent and severe absence

Any child with attendance of 90% or below (regardless of the reason for any absences) is considered to be a persistent absentee by the government. This equates to missing $\frac{1}{2}$ a day of school every week. A child with attendance of 50% or below is considered a severe absentee.

Do you know what your child's attendance percentage is?

Your child's attendance is shared on their termly report. If your child is persistently or severely absent, the school might organise a meeting to find out what could be causing the absences and what is needed to help make things better. This may result in the creation of an attendance contract or referrals to services such as Early Help and the Family Support Worker who may be able to provide your family with additional support.

Advice for schools

The school might also contact the School's Attendance Advisor for advice in cases of severe or persistent absence.

There are 190 days in a school year, which leaves 175 days to spend on whatever you choose.

190 DAYS
100%

Very best chance of success

183 DAYS
96%

Off to a flying start

179 DAYS
94%

Less chance of success

175 DAYS
92%

Harder to make progress

MORE THAN 19 DAYS' ABSENCE LESS THAN 90%

Persistent absence, not good for your child

Positive attendance for all ...

School Attendance: A Guide for Parents & Carers

Farington Moss, St. Paul's C of E Primary School works closely with parents and carers and other services to promote the regular attendance of children at school.

Your responsibility

You have a legal duty to ensure your child receives a regular education at school or otherwise, which will help give them the best possible chance of success in life.

If your child is of compulsory school age and registered at a school, but absent without good reason, the school may choose not to authorise any of those days. This could result in the council taking action against you for each child absent, including:

- A fine (penalty notice)*
- Attendance Prosecution through the Magistrates' Courts which could lead to a fine of up to £2,500 or a parenting order being issued.
- An Education Supervision Order (ESO) through the Family Courts.
- * Your child's school may apply for the council to issue a penalty notice to you if:
 - Your child goes on holiday without the headteacher's permission.
 - Your child is absent or late without a suitable explanation, or none is provided.

You may receive a penalty of £160 for each child's absence if paid within 28 days, reduced to £80 if paid within 21 days.

If a second penalty is issued in a 3 year rolling period the fine is £160 with no option to pay the reduced rate.

A third penalty cannot be issued in a rolling 3 year period and therefore you may face prosecution in the Magistrates' Court which could result in a maximum fine of £2,500.

www.gov.uk/school-attendance-absence/legal-action-to-enforce-school-attendance

Attendance matters

Too ill to attend school?

Children can attend school with minor ailments (toothache, headache, stomach ache, cold, sore throat). If you are unsure how long your child should be absent with an illness, ask your child's school, GP or pharmacist for advice.

Medical appointments

All routine appointments should be booked outside school hours. If your child is absent for medical reasons, your child's school may ask to see 'medical evidence' (e.g. copy of a prescription, medicine packaging with a label or appointment card). If you are unable to provide this, the school might not authorise the absence.

Absence during term time

Your child must not be absent from school:

- For day trips / birthdays / holidays
- If weather is bad or you are running late
- To care for other family members
- Due to the illness of a parent or sibling.

The school will only authorise an absence in very exceptional circumstances, such as in the event of a family emergency.

Reporting absences

It is a parent / carer's responsibility to notify school with the reason if their child will be absent.

www.childrenscommissioner.gov.uk/back-into-school/resources-for-families/

Every day counts

Punctuality

Arriving late to school is unsettling for your child and can be disruptive for their teacher and other children in the class. It is important your child arrives on time. If your child arrives late, this will be marked in the register. If your child arrives very late, this may be recorded as unauthorised absence for the whole morning. Be sure you know the times the school marks pupils as late.

Minutes late per day	Equals days-worth of teaching lost per year
5 minutes	3.4 days
10 minutes	6.9 days
15 minutes	10.3 days
20 minutes	13.8 days

